

David Krein
Head of Research

David Krein joined MarketAxess as Head of Research at MarketAxess in August 2014.

Mr. Krein is responsible for spearheading the firm's market research and analysis for the institutional credit markets. MarketAxess Research leverages the firm's extensive real-time and historical fixed-income trade data, as well as market data from FINRA TRACE and Trax[®], to develop market insights that help inform trading and execution strategy.

Mr. Krein joined MarketAxess from NASDAQ OMX Global Indexes where he was Head of Research. In this capacity, he led the research and development of index methodologies across asset classes, which were used as benchmarks for active and passive investment funds globally. Prior to this, he held a senior position in product development and analytics at S&P Dow Jones Indices. He also founded DTB Capital to develop trading and investment products for derivatives exchanges and the OTC marketplace within equity, commodity and multi-asset class portfolios. Before establishing DTB Capital, Mr. Krein spent more than 10 years in various trading, structuring and technology positions at leading investment banks, including UBS and Merrill Lynch.

Mr. Krein has been an active member of the professional investment management and wealth management communities. He has spoken at key industry conferences, and has authored several articles for specialized publications including The Journal of Indexes, The Journal of Wealth Management and the Investment Management Consultant Association's The Monitor. He is also a member of the Review Board for The Journal of Indexes.

Mr. Krein earned an MBA with Honors from The University of Chicago Graduate School of Business and a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering with Distinction from Cornell University.